

Senior Housing Floor Plans for a Place to Call Home

Think back to when you bought your first house - there was something special, an “it” factor, that made it feel like home. Want to go through that significant experience again when choosing your home for your retirement years?

Floor plans aren’t always high on the list when you research senior living communities, but maybe they should be. Your home is a reflection of who you are, and this is the place where people tend to spend a majority of their time. At The Atrium at Navesink Harbor, we offer a variety of floor plans designed to suit your lifestyle and taste. Each floor plan is ready to be personalized and made your own.

Considerations to Make When Looking at Floor Plans for Senior Housing

While going through the decision-making process of choosing the floor plan you want to move in to, we recommend thinking about what your needs are when it comes to your place of residence. There are three points to be especially mindful of when considering what you need in a floor plan: your lifestyle, the space you need for your belongings and your budget.

- Lifestyle: The apartment you choose is your new home, so you want to make sure the floor plan you choose matches your lifestyle and interests. Make a list of amenities and requirements you need to be comfortable and ensure the floor plan you choose checks off those boxes.
- Space: Home is the place where you can truly be yourself, relax and unwind. Think of the space that would make you the most comfortable - some people enjoy less fuss with a smaller area, while others thrive when there is plenty of room to move around. It’s completely up to your taste.
- Budget: Perhaps the most important consideration to make when choosing your new home is your budget. Our sales counselors are available to assist you in researching and evaluating your options when it comes to balancing your needs and budget. There are a variety of options for you to consider when making the move that suit various financial situations.
